This lawsuit is laughable!! I have used both platforms and all types of programs in my years of teaching business education and computers. Believe me Microsoft develops outstanding products, gives the consumer great help with problems and resolves any issues in the most professional way. I have been using AOL since it first became available and feel the same way about it. However, Netscape is another issue!! I teach people in their homes how to resolve and learn how to use their computer and the ones with Netscape have much difficulty. This has nothing to do with Microsoft but the program itself!!! Get real!!!!! Why is it that lesser companies try to recreate problems for the more knowledge, creative excellent performing businesses. They want a handout as far as I am concerned and the legal system shouldn't allow this!!!! I was very disappointed that the companies that were suing Microsoft wouldn't go along with the donation to the schools. What benefit to short of cash & technology the schools have to deal with that harm children!! But yet the companies are their with their hand out wanting something!! It is disgusting and I am not going to purchase any of those products from those companies. However, I love AOL and will stay with them.

Please look at the whole picture on this ludicrous (as far as I am concerned) lawsuit.
